EPISODE 9

Production :

1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to define the problem. This involves identifying the symptoms of the problem and determining the scope of the problem. Once the problem has been defined, the next step is to identify the causes of the problem. This involves identifying the factors that are contributing to the problem and determining the underlying causes. Once the causes have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan of action. This involves identifying the steps that need to be taken to solve the problem and determining the resources that will be needed to implement the plan. Finally, the last step in the process is to implement the plan and monitor the results. This involves putting the plan into action and tracking the progress of the solution. Once the problem has been solved, the final step is to evaluate the results and determine if the solution was effective. This involves comparing the results of the solution to the original problem and determining if the problem has been resolved.

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered. This involves understanding the context and the specific requirements of the task.

Page 278

Sc. Pnl. Bg. day night

Sc. 188 Pnl. A Bg. day night

A black and white line drawing of a cartoon character, possibly a dog or a bear, looking up at a large, faceted diamond resting on a pedestal. The character is in the foreground, looking up with a wide-eyed expression. The diamond is large and multi-faceted, sitting on a simple rectangular pedestal. The background is a simple landscape with some jagged lines representing hills or trees on the left and a few small stars or distant lights in the sky. The entire scene is enclosed in a rectangular frame with dashed lines indicating the background elements.
